V1

She wanders through a life
of broken chords and strings.
Moves around from town to town
in search of family.
She travels with a guitar
caught in a refrain.
Another night, a lonely mic,
another nameless stage.
And then she sings.

CHORUS

And the people go
ooh, ooh, ooh.
And the people go
ooh, ooh, baby blue.

V2

Thought things would be different than motels on the road.
Empty days and pickup lines
erode a heart of gold.
Still hopes to find the silver key.
It keeps her movin' on.
Though no one really knows her
they recognize her song.
And so she sings.

CHORUS

And the people go
ooh, ooh, ooh.
And the people go
ooh, ooh, baby blue.

V3

She keeps on chasin' taillights
of the dreams that fade away.
Landin' in the nightclubs
from Detroit to Santa Fe.
But there within the music
for just an hour or two comes comfort in the dark,
warmth around her muse.
And so she sings.

CHORUS

And the people go
ooh, ooh, ooh.
And the people go
ooh, ooh, baby blue.
And the people go
ooh, ooh, ooh.
And the people go
ooh, ooh, baby blue.
